A lawn-care expert thinks liquid fertilizer was used to write "Go Riders" on a berm surrounding the University of Manitoba and Investors Group Field in Winnipeg after last Friday's game. SHANE GIBSON/METRO IN WINNIPEG

Rider writers blight Bombers' berm

'GO RIDERS.' Could be weeks before message grown in lawn outside the stadium disappears

SHANE GIBSON
Metro in Winnipeg

Who knew Saskatchewan Roughriders fans also have green thumbs?

This week, large letters began glowing Rider green out of the otherwise brown grass on a berm surrounding the University of Manitoba campus and the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' stadium.

Now the phrase "Go Riders" greets Bomber fans as they turn off Pembina Highway on their way to home games.

From a distance, the "lawn art" looks like it's been spray-painted, but a closer look reveals the letters are just brighter than the surrounding grass.

So is the grass somehow greener for Rider fans? Not so, said Dana Kapusta, co-owner of Nutri-Lawn in Winnipeg.

"They probably had a backpack sprayer filled with liquid fertilizer," he said. "And that's some big letters.... You'd be looking at a two-man job."

Kapusta figures the melon-heads were experienced.

"It's impressive," conceded the Bomber fan. "If you apply too much you're going to kill the grass, so somebody knew what they were doing."

Judging by the colour of the grass, Kapusta thinks the deed was likely done last Friday and that it'll take at least two weeks for the message to vanish.

Both the Bombers and the Riders declined to comment on the prank Wednesday. WITH FILES FROM MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Remarks from Rider Nation

"It's very inappropriate. That's not how fans should cheer on their team.... That's downgrading the other team."
Germaine Mason, who's supported the Riders for the past 10 years

"It makes me feel proud to be a Rider. We've got jokers out there who would take time out of their day to travel to other cities and spread the happiness."
Cailean Duke, a lifelong Rider supporter

Pot growers: Why can't we all just get along, man?

New laws be damned. Defiant medicinal marijuana aficionados say the Prairie Medicinal Harvest Cup will go on Saskatchewan's Prairie Medicinal Harvest Cup won't go up in smoke, even if new federal regulations force it underground.

The event, which invites medicinal marijuana growers across Saskatchewan and Canada to submit pot samples to be judged, is entering its third year. Organizers say it will continue beyond 2013, despite a new federal law prohibiting private-dwelling production.

"We all started underground," said Jeff Lundstrom, owner of Saskatoon's Skunk Funk Smoker's Emporium, a medicinal grower and founder of the Harvest Cup.

"We were all illegal before the program, so if (they) think we don't know where our roots came from and how to get back to them, they're wrong."

From Friday through Sunday, 15 growers — approximately 11 of whom are from Saskatchewan — will compete for the Cup in Saskatoon.

Lundstrom, however, said it's focused on more than potent pot.

"We need acceptance, and the only way to make that happen is to host events like this," he explained.

City police say that though some individuals are legally permitted to possess medicinal marijuana, they will charge those without proper licences and will take enforcement of the event on a step-by-step basis.

Insp. Jerome Engele said by email that holders of possession licences are not "allowed to share, sell (or) give" marijuana.

Those who do, he added, are "subject to charges under the Criminal Code of Canada and ... are also breaching their licensing agreements."

Organizers are expecting about 300 guests at the Cup competition at the event.

Sex offender on the loose leads to school lockdowns

Public schools in Lloydminster on the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary were in lockdown Wednesday because a potentially violent high-risk sex offender was on the loose.

Michael Diachuk, director of education with the Lloydminster Public School Division, says doors were locked and students were being kept inside following a warning from the RCMP.

Mounties said Tuesday that an Edmonton man's electronic monitoring bracelet was found on the roof of a business in Lloydminster — it had been cut off.

Michael Sean Stanley has a long history of sex offences, including taking children from playgrounds.

Diachuk said high school students who wanted to go outside were being asked to get into a buddy system so they were not alone.

He said the precautionary measures would continue until the danger had passed. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Blaze rips through 32-unit condo, causes $2M damage

A fire has ravaged a condominium complex in Elbow, Sask.

Initial reports say no one was injured when flames tore through the 32-unit building early Wednesday morning.

Fire crews from three neighbouring towns were called out to help, along with a few farmers who had water reserves in their spray trucks.

Elbow Fire Chief Glen Amor estimates the blaze caused about $2 million in damage.

The cause of the fire was under investigation.

Roller derby. Team says pressure's on in upcoming bout

MORGAN MODJESKI
morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

The Saskatoon MindFox is gearing up for fierce competition this weekend as the Red Deer Belladonnas are coming to town to take on the national roller derby champions.

Since winning the Roller Derby Association of Canada's national championship in March, a lot has changed for the Saskatoon Roller Derby League's travelling team.

"There's a lot of pressure when it comes to being the national champions," said Sarah "Curb Stompin" Coleshaw, a member of the MindFox.

"There's always that pressure to stay up there and keep your spot, because as soon as you start to fall, it just comes crashing down," she said.

While Coleshaw said the MindFox are confident about the upcoming bout, the Belladonnas say they too are ready to take to the track.

"The Belladonnas are a really competitive group of ladies," Sarah Whyte, a.k.a "Tye Die," a member of the Belladonnas, said in a phone interview from Red Deer. "We go out there to win and play our best every single time … and Saskatoon is always a great challenge for us."

While the Belladonnas and the MindFox are on friendly terms outside of the track, once the skates are on, it's all business.

"We're all really good friends, but the level of competition between the girls is so high," she said.

"We like to push each other and make each other better in the long-run."

Details

Derby action starts on Oct. 5 at Prairieland Park.

- Red Deer's and Saskatoon's B teams, the Nightshades and the Killa' Bees, are up first at 5 p.m.
- The MindFox and the Belladonnas hit the track at 7 p.m.

Art attack: U of S class yarn bombs campus

Raene Poisson, a senior at the University of Saskatchewan, peers through the yarn bomb on campus. She participated in Prof. Marcus Miller's exercise last week. JACOB MORGAN/METRO

Students from Prof. Marcus Miller's course on exhibition art made an old stairwell on the University of Saskatchewan campus a lot more colourful.

Last Friday, the group of about 27 in the class strung balls of yarn up and down three storeys in the Murray Building near the Gordon Snelgrove Gallery.

"It was an improvised project that we did as a class to sort of change the environment," explained Miller.

This technique is called yarn bombing, and Miller said the idea is to leave a temporary mark on a public space.

"It's a fairly recent phenomenon," he said. "It's a form of guerrilla public art that's very sympathetic to its neighbours."

In other words, he said, the idea is not to disrupt surroundings, but to add to them.

"We absolutely had to leave clear spaces for people to get up and down," he said. "We were (careful) not to block anybody or hinder anybody's movement."

Raine Poisson is in her final year of a Bachelor of Fine Arts program. She took part in the installation and said the class developed rules to make things interesting, such as ensuring the yellow threads were tied in a bow or that boys only threw pink.

However, as someone who typically specializes in painting, her favourite aspect of the exercise was the spontaneity.

"It's not necessarily in the way, or provocative or anything," she said. "But it really caused a buzz because no one outside of the class knew what was going on."

The yarn bomb will be left intact for the remainder of the week.

Berlusconi swings behind PM in sudden about-face

Italy. Support ensures government's survival, Senate votes to back prime minister 235-70

Silvio Berlusconi listens to Italian Prime Minister Enrico Letta deliver his speech at the Senate, in Rome, Wednesday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Silvio Berlusconi made a stunning about-face Wednesday and threw his support behind the government of Prime Minister Enrico Letta in a confidence vote, acknowledging defeat on the Senate floor after defections in his party robbed him of the backing he needed to bring down the government.

Berlusconi's support ensured the survival — for now — of Letta's five-month-old left-right coalition. But it signalled that the 77-year-old billionaire's once unchallenged authority over Italy's centre-right has wobbled as his judicial woes catch up with him.

It was a major setback for Berlusconi, who over the weekend had demanded his five Cabinet ministers quit the government and bring it down, incensed at a vote planned Friday that could strip him of his Senate seat following his tax fraud conviction and four-year prison sentence.

But in a remarkable challenge to Berlusconi's authority, several allies balked and said they would instead support Letta's hybrid coalition to push ahead with necessary economic and political measures.

The unusual show of defiance could signal that Berlusconi's influence has seriously eroded after two decades leading Italy's centre-right and being the main protagonist in Italy's political scene.

"We have decided, not without internal strife, to vote in confidence" Berlusconi said.

Though he tried to look magnanimous, it was the billionaire media mogul's first-ever defeat within the party he founded and which has achieved success largely through his personal appeal.

"Berlusconi is not finished," said Roberto D'Alimonte of Rome's LUISS University. "This is another step toward the end, but it is not the end yet. The end will come with a major electoral defeat.

"He has great resources. He has media resources, financial resources, the resources of the 6 or 7 million voters who will follow him down the abyss. That is why he cannot be counted out, even with his options being closed."

Canadian man arrested in Somalia accused of beheading his 4 sons

'This man is crazy.' Omar Hassan, 60, spent 30 years driving a taxi in Calgary, says the grieving mother of slain boys

A 60-year-old Canadian has been arrested in Somalia, accused of beheading his four sons with a knife.

Local press reported that police in the central city of Beledweyne arrested Omar Hassan Sunday evening after his four young children — Yahye, 7, twins Idiris and Sakariye, 6, and Yonis, 3 — were found dead.

"He has taken my blood!" wailed the boys' mother Qadro Addawe, reached by telephone in Mogadishu. "I don't have anything. I lost my children and I don't have anyone to help me now."

Addawe, 29, said Hassan spent 30 years driving a taxi in Calgary, and she married him in 2005 in the hope of having a better life. "He's a (Canadian) citizen," she said. Hiiraan Online, a Somali news website, reported Hassan had also worked in Yellowknife.

Addawe said they were married in Ethiopia and then moved to Kenya, where they had their first boy. They went next to Uganda, where the twins were born, and then moved back to Somalia, where they had their last child in 2010.

Quoted

"I don't have anything. I lost my children and I don't have anyone to help me now."

Qadro Addawe, mother of four boys allegedly beheaded by their father in Somalia

Once established in Beledweyne, Hassan started threatening Addawe and the boys, she said. Shortly afterward, she fell ill and was forced to leave her sons in the care of a relative while she made the long journey to Mogadishu so she could receive proper treatment in a hospital.

Around this same time, Hassan stopped supporting her financially, she said.

She contacted Canadian diplomats repeatedly in an attempt to get papers to allow her and the children to immigrate to Canada but says she was rebuffed.

She received a call from the Beledweyne police at 8:30 a.m. Monday, telling her about the murders and the arrest.

"I have been his wife for eight years. I know his character," she said. "His problem, I don't understand. This man is crazy."

"He said he wanted to attack me. I prayed to Allah … now he's killed them."

Russia. 14 Greenpeace activists charged with piracy; more expected

Greenpeace says that 14 of its activists who were detained after protesting at a Russian oil platform have been charged with piracy, a crime punishable by up to 15 years in prison.

The activists from Argentina, Brazil, Britain, Finland, the Netherlands, Poland, Russia and Sweden were among 30 people who were on board the Greenpeace ship that was seized by the Russian Coast Guard following the Sept. 18 protest.

Two of the activists had tried to scale an offshore platform owned by Russian energy giant Gazprom to call attention to the environmental risks of drilling in Arctic waters.

Greenpeace says more activists, including two Canadians, were expected to be formally charged on Thursday and Friday.

Paul Ruzycki of Port Colborne, Ont., was serving as the ship's chief mate and Montrealer Alexandre Paul was also on board.

All 30 are being held in jails in Murmansk, a port above the Arctic Circle.

Rob Ford stands by friend slapped with drug charges

Out on bail. 'Good guy' and occasional driver for T.O. mayor accused of trafficking marijuana

Toronto Mayor Rob Ford said Wednesday he's surprised and shocked that one of his friends has been arrested and charged with four drug offences in the city's west end.

Toronto police say Alessandro Lisi, 35, is one of two men arrested Tuesday after a search warrant was executed in connection with an ongoing criminal investigation.

Lisi is charged with trafficking in marijuana, possession of proceeds of crime, possession of marijuana and conspiracy to commit an indictable offence.

Ford defended his friend in an impromptu news conference at a gas station near his west-end home, saying Lisi is "(on the) straight and narrow" and he's never seen him drink or do drugs.

He refused to comment further on Lisi's arrest, saying the matter is before the courts.

Lisi appeared in court at Toronto's Old City Hall on Wednesday afternoon and was granted $5,000 bail. He has another court appearance on Nov. 12.

Media reports have described Lisi as a close friend and occasional driver for the mayor.

Torstar News Service reported earlier this year that Lisi was looking for a video that allegedly showed Ford using crack cocaine. Ford has said he does not use crack cocaine and that the alleged video does not exist.

In connection with Tuesday's investigation, another man, Jamshid Bahrami, 47, of Toronto, is charged with possession of cocaine, three counts of trafficking in marijuana and conspiracy to commit an indictable offence.

A trip to jail

Prisoners move out ... and a tour group moves in

They went to prison — and loved it.

Eager visitors lined up Wednesday as the historic Kingston Penitentiary threw open its doors to the public for the first time in decades.

About two dozen people entered its imposing bluestone limestone walls — the first tour group allowed inside since the last prisoners were moved out last week.

Visitors were curious to get a peek inside the storied penitentiary, where some of the country's worst criminals have done hard time.

They looked in awe at the jail's workshop area (top photo) and the segregation cells (left), which are little more than cages.

Correctional Service Canada says the future of Kingston Pen is uncertain, but the plan is to fully decommission it by 2015.

Filthy rich and getting richer ...

We're doing just fine, thanks. Affluent Canadians tell researchers they've bounced back from 2008 market crash

You've always suspected it — and you're right: The rich ARE getting richer.

The majority of affluent Canadians are better off today than before the 2008 market crash, a new study shows.

A new BMO Harris Private Banking study covered well-off Canadians — those with investable assets of $1 million or more.

And it found that 54 per cent of them said their financial situation is more solid than before September 2008.

Only 11 per cent said they are worse off and 36 per cent reported that their financial situation is unchanged.

The picture is slightly better for wealthy Americans — 61 per cent said they are doing better, and only seven per cent said they are worse off than they were prior to the global economic crisis.

"High-net-worth Canadians clearly feel they have bounced back well from the 2008 downturn and are fairly upbeat about what the future has in store for Canada's economy," said Alex Dousmanis-Curtis, senior vice-president who heads up BMO Harris.

"However, we're also hearing from many of our clients that they remain somewhat concerned about global market fluctuations and they want to ... insulate their wealth as best as possible against a downturn."

But they're not shy about spending the extra dough, with the study showing them returning to pre-recession spending levels.

They are forking over more than, or the same as, they did prior to September 2008 in key areas — entertainment and leisure (89 per cent), travel and vacations (86 per cent), club memberships (78 per cent), clothing (75 per cent) and collections and hobbies (72 per cent).

Glitches. Interac service up and running (mainly)

Interac was experiencing intermittent issues with its e-Transfer service Wednesday despite initially restoring service in the morning after day-long problems on Tuesday.

After having fixed the earlier glitches, the company was seeing some issues again and working to resolve them, spokesperson Caroline Hubberstey said.

The problem was again mainly affecting deposits, although a few financial institutions also had problems sending funds.

Hubberstey said most people were able to send an Interac e-Transfer, but when the notification for deposit arrived at the receiver, the receiver was unable to deposit the funds.

Several people took to Twitter to express concerns that payments for such things as rent might not go through or that they might be hit with non-sufficient funds (NSF) charges.

Interac said its other services — Interac Debit, Interac Cash and Interac Online — were operating normally.

Protests. PMO relents, lets TV man cover Harper

A veteran TV cameraman will be allowed to travel to Malaysia with the prime minister this week after all.

Earlier, Stephen Harper's office appeared poised to scratch CTV journalist Dave Ellis from the trip because he asked an impromptu question during a media event last week in New York.

The TV networks fought back, insisting that they — not the Prime Minister's Office — should decide who to assign to cover Harper.

And now Jason MacDonald, a spokesperson for the prime minister, says no accredited journalist will be prevented from boarding Harper's plane.

During the New York event, Ellis asked Harper about the charges laid against then-Conservative MP Dean Del Mastro, even though reporters and photographers had been told questions were not allowed.

Harper leaves Thursday for a seven-day trip to Malaysia and Indonesia, and CTV had Ellis accredited to work as a pool cameraman.

Supervolcanoes on Mars spewed huge lava clouds

Scientists have discovered ancient supervolcanoes on Mars similar to the cauldron-like caldera that sits under Yellowstone National Park.

The new finding suggests such eruptions could have affected the red planet's climate and atmosphere.

Upward trend

Internet stocks regain some sizzle

Internet stocks are heating up again, just as Twitter is preparing to turn up the temperature with its highly anticipated IPO.

Consider what's happened in the past month: The once-scorned stocks of Netflix and Facebook have soared to new highs; Yahoo's stock has surpassed $34 US for the first time in nearly six years; enamoured investors just poured more than $1.7 billion US into secondary stock offerings by LinkedIn and Pandora; and Priceline's stock just broke $1,000 US, catapulting past its peak reached in 1999.

U.S. budget battle. Obama, GOP leaders meet in D.C.

Furloughed government workers protest in Washington. WIN MCNAMEE/GETTY IMAGES

U.S. President Barack Obama brought top lawmakers to the White House on Wednesday as Republicans rejected Democratic demands to vote on legislation ending a two-day partial government shutdown without changes to the nation's three-year-old health-care law.

Despite the meeting, White House press secretary Jay Carney said sharply that Obama "will not offer concessions to Republicans in exchange for not tanking the economy."

With the nation's ability to borrow money soon to lapse, Republicans and Democrats alike said the shutdown that has idled some 800,000 federal workers could last for two weeks or more, obliging a divided government to grapple with both issues at the same time.

House Republicans have brought a handful of bills to the floor to reopen portions of the government, including veterans' programs, parks and the National Institutes of Health.

What to do with a 3D printer? Copy yourself

Technology. London startup is betting that printed plastic figurines will be a hot keepsake

KIERON MONKS
Metro World News in London

My twin is a perfect replica. From the haircut to the creases on his shirt, and the less-than-perfect posture, he is a mirror image. But at 15 centimeters tall, my twin appears to have been zapped by a shrink ray.

The truth is only slightly less like science fiction. The clone has been freshly printed from plastic, using an "experimental technique" by London tech startup Levavo.

To create Kieron 2, I stood in a studio surrounded by over 60 cameras that scanned and measured me, using photogrammetry to accurately extract features, before feeding the information to a 3D printer that uses around 400,000 colours.

The business is among the first of its kind, a product of the Polish brothers Marcin and Piotr Piosik. "It started from us photographing garden ornaments," says Marcin. "We realized the potential of 3D printing and bought 20 cameras to make a prototype."

Investors were impressed and the brothers began to produce commercially, selling the models for around $120 each. Customers find surprising uses for the figurines.

"Some use them like photos, keeping their family on a shelf," says Marcin. "Others like to have superhero effects, and one guy would get them to see how his diet was working."

The brothers aim to launch studios across Europe, and stay ahead of the game by constantly improving resolution and the materials for models. "We believe in the next couple of years we will have the same detail as any photo," says Marcin.

LAND OF THE LOUD LORD

HE SAYS

John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

My landlord and I have a complex relationship built on a solid foundation of shouting.

Many people have landlords who treat their apartments with benign neglect, quick to respond to every tenant request with a blithe "We can send somebody in about a week," even if the specific message was "FIRE!"

Well, John my landlord is not like that.

John is the opposite of that. John is this: a perfectionist and a busybody and 90-something years old.

The kind of landlord who stares at you through the mottled glass of his door as if you can't see his distorted silhouette. The kind who stands on the front porch with a flyswatter (really), lest an insect sully his perfect patio. The kind who has appeared on two separate iterations of Google Street View sitting in his designated spot, probably mulling where to find a flyswatter big enough to chase off the Google Car.

John is hard of hearing, so while he's being nosy, he speaks to you at a volume usually reserved for pro-wrestling interviews. GROCERIES, HUH?! WHAT YOU GOT THERE!? YOGURT?!?!

Have I mentioned my rent is really low?

I'm not a perfectionist, to put it mildly. When the tenant upstairs moved, John had me take some photos of the apartment so he could catalogue the "mess" that had been left behind, such as an onion in the fridge.

"How can anyone live like this?" he asked, as I thought about the rotting vegetables in my fridge, several of which had become radioactive and/or sentient.

That means every time he knocks on my apartment door, my life descends into a Benny Hill panic, Yakety Sax blaring, except the only half-naked person is me. When he arrives for the occasional maintenance visit, I throw my pants off, so I can open the door a crack and let him know I'll be "just a minute." This buys me time to, say, cover the tomato soup stain in the middle of the living room carpet.

Once I was dealing with a fruit-fly infestation with vinegar traps when he unexpectedly knocked. I was forced to improvise with the vacuum cleaner, in a massacre I like to imagine the surviving fruit flies still talk about in hushed tones.

Maybe it's my fault that I'm a slob, maybe it's his fault that his idea of a reasonable warning is three knocks and a gentle "HELLO ANYBODY HOME?!?!"

Whatever the case, I'm happy. As long as my apartment is clean and affordable, I will put up with levels of eccentricity that greatly exceed the scientifically acceptable safe limit of 12 micro-quirks per square metre.

How do I make it work? I believe the key to a successful tenant-landlord relationship is communication: That is, avoid it at all costs.

When John is friendly, I smile. When he's confrontational, I nod. Then I move on. Compare to the upstairs tenant, who has had at least three shouting matches with him since she moved in a month ago. Calling the police seems to be a running theme, so at least they have some common ground to work from.

If you'd like any further tips on how to deal with your landlord, I'll just need a minute to throw some clothes on and ask you to ignore any strange noises, such as explosions. But feel free to give me a shout. That's what I'm used to.

Gaza's tunnel smugglers bored

HATEM MOUSSA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No goods transferred amid Egypt turmoil

A Palestinian man works in a tunnel in Rafah, on the border between Egypt and the southern Gaza Strip.

Since the summer, Egypt's military has tried to destroy or seal off most of the smuggling tunnels under the Gaza-Egypt border, a consequence of the heightened tensions between Cairo and the Hamas government in Gaza. The tunnels once employed thousands of young men in Gaza. By early September, with most tunnels closed, only a few tunnel workers reported to their jobs for maintenance work. Some mask their faces with shirts to avoid identification while working, for fear of repercussions in case they were to travel to Egypt in the future.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A solution to a blockade

- The tunnels have served for years as a lifeline for Gaza, home to some 1.7 million Palestinians.
- They became important after Hamas overran the territory in 2007, prompting Israel and Hosni Mubarak to impose a border blockade.

Fuel, construction goods

"We have no other alternative but to work in these tunnels. They are the only crossing to bring needed goods to Gaza."

RE: O Canada, In All Thy Gender-Neutral Sons Command...? Published Oct. 1

When you have a mixed group, male and female, the masculine is no longer masculine alone but encompasses the entire group. For example, if you holler, "Hi there, guys," to a group of friends, the girls in the group are included in the greeting because of the rules of language.

English is not the only language that does this. In French, if you have a mixed group of men and women, the pronoun used is 'Ils.' It means all of them. In Spanish, if you have a mixed group, the pronoun used is 'Ellos,' the plural masculine form which now includes the women, too.

'In all thy sons command' implies sons and daughters. It leaves no one out. I lament that these women, who claim to represent all women (yeah, right) didn't pay more attention to their education. It's important to learn about the world and I would think that language would be a good skill to have.

Get a grip! You make me embarrassed of my own gender.

For the love of laughs and shorts

Comedy. Gabriel Iglesias brings his brand of funny to western Canada. Just don't expect him to leave his Cali gear at home

BACKSTAGE PASS
Simon Hiatt
saskatoon@metronews.ca

Most people who are making a name for themselves in entertainment would consider starring in a huge Hollywood film the pinnacle of their careers. Gabriel Iglesias clearly isn't most entertainers.

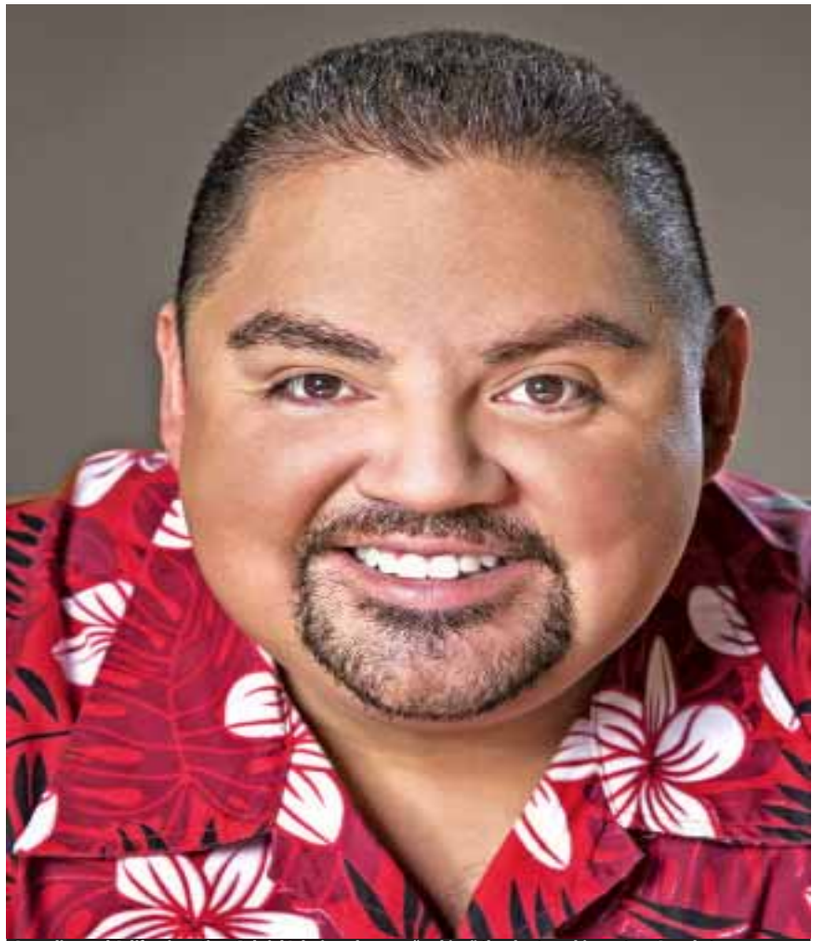
"Honestly, I'm not a big fan of the movie making experience. I love saying that I did a movie, I like the premiere, I like watching it. But the actual work involved in making a movie, it's not my first choice," Iglesias said in a telephone interview from Los Angeles.

While Iglesias is grateful for his cinematic opportunities, which have included a significant role as deejay Tobias in Magic Mike and recently wrapping a role starring alongside Marlon Wayans in A Haunted House 2, time spent on movie set means time away from his first love.

"I'm a comedian, I love being able to travel and do shows, maybe party after, meet the people then jump on a plane and head onto the next city."

Iglesias, better known as Fluffy to fans of his stand-up work, says the long days and slow pace on movie sets are hard to take compared to his usual day job.

His success as a comedian allows him to live what he describes as a "rock star lifestyle" on the road on the weekends, while still being able to come home to his family in California during the week.



Comedian and California native, Gabriel Iglesias, plans on "rocking" the shorts on his western Canada tour.
CONTRIBUTED

Online presence

Iglesias attributes much of the growth of the Fluffy phenomenon to his online presence. His videos have millions of views on YouTube and he runs his Twitter, Facebook and other social media platforms. "I'm very hands on with it, I like interacting with my fans. I tell people 'hey, if you didn't get a reply, it was actually me not replying,'" Iglesias said.

But it took a long time to get to this point. Before achieving success Iglesias experienced several lows including being evicted from his home. However, his perseverance paid off as he has released two wildly popular DVDs of his work and has appeared on virtually every late night talk show.

"I was 10-years-old when I saw the movie Eddie Murphy Raw, and it was weird I just knew that somehow I would end up doing this," Iglesias said. "This is what I've always wanted to do. Everything else is kind of icing on the cake."

Iglesias will soon be bringing his stand-up to Saskatchewan with shows in Saskatoon on Oct. 6 and Regina on Oct. 11.

"It's an interesting show, I bring about four comics with me but there's also a stage show that happens. The best way I can describe it is the WWE meets the Food Network. It's not just a stand-up show, it's very interactive."

And despite the chilly temperatures in the forecast as he makes his way through Eastern Canada, the California native won't be making any adjustments to his trademark wardrobe.

"I have no problem with your climate; I'll still be rocking shorts."

Ja Rule getting a second career start

New movie. After lengthy stint in jail for gun possession, the once-rapper is now getting another lease on life with a starring role in feature film

Ja Rule is switching gears in life and his career. CONTRIBUTED

Ja Rule, who recently spent nearly two years behind bars for illegal gun possession, landed a role in a new movie because screenwriter Galley Molina empathized with the rapper's missteps.

"People used to ask, 'Well, you know he's a felon?' And I would say, 'Well, so am I,'" recalled Molina, a 44-year-old pastor who was locked up for five years for drug trafficking.

"I know his heart. I know what type of dude he is and he was probably one of the most professional guys on the set."

I'm in Love With a Church Girl will debut Oct. 18 in more than 280 theatres in the U.S. Ja Rule stars as a high-level drug dealer who struggles to leave his illegal lifestyle behind after getting into a serious relationship with a church-going woman played by Adrienne Bailon of Cheetah Girls and 3LW fame. Stephen Baldwin, Sopranos actor Vincent Pastore and Michael Madsen also appear in the movie.

The film, which was produced by Molina and Grammy-winning Christian singer Israel Houghton, is based on Molina's life. Ja Rule was hired while his gun possession cases were pending.

He was released from house arrest in July after he had served most of a two-year sentence in a New York state prison before his subsequent transfer into federal custody in a tax evasion case.

He admitted to failing to pay taxes on more than $3 million earned between 2004 and 2006.

"This role was very different for me," said Ja Rule, whose film credits include The Fast and the Furious. "I've done a lot of films that all have been pretty edgy. I played thug characters, but with this character, even though I play a thug somewhat, he's really a guy going through a transition."

The 37-year-old Ja Rule, born Jeffrey Atkins, said he put on 30 pounds in jail and read a number of books.

He also earned his GED and said ex-New York State Comptroller Alan Hevesi and ex-Tyco International CEO Dennis Kozlowski urged him to pursue higher education.

"It's really minimum — all of the fame, the movies and the music. When you're behind that wall, all that becomes very minimum," said Ja Rule, who burst onto the music scene in 1999 and released back-to-back multiplatinum and platinum albums.

"I was more focused on getting my mind right, getting my body right, more thinking about my family. Those are the things you cherish."

Ja Rule became known for hip-hop jams that became Top 40 successes, including No. 1 hits with Jennifer Lopez and Ashanti.

He earned a number of accolades, including four Grammy nominations. He said he's still excited about recording, but he wants to focus on TV and film. "I love music, it's my passion," said Ja Rule, who independently released Pain Is Love 2 during his incarceration last year but put up subpar numbers. "This is my second wind right now, and I'm happy to be home, but I think as I'm getting older, my passion is leaning toward doing more television and film." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Background

Looking back on Ja Rule's career.

- The beginning. Atkins began his rap career in 1993 with the Cash Money Click group.
- Where he started. In 1995, he made his first appearance on Mic Geronimo's Time to Build. It also featured Jay-Z and DMX, who were also just getting their start in their rap careers.

Deltron 3030 returns back to planet rap

Music. Hip-hop supergroup back with album that is rife with their planet-sized ambition and a depth of topic rarely seen

Members of Deltron 3030. CONTRIBUTED

It's been 13 years since Deltron 3030's otherworldly debut beamed down, seemingly out of nowhere — a stardust-encrusted piece of alien tech, its space boots gleefully out of step with anything happening in mainstream music at the time — and don't think Del the Funky Homosapien has forgotten exactly how long ago it was.

The deviously clever rapper fronted that hip-hop supergroup with Canadian turntable maestro Kid Koala and famed production mad scientist Dan the Automator. Together, the trio assembled an alt-hip-hop space opera distinguished by ornate classical-informed soundscapes, a rich Afro-futuristic setting in a dystopian 3030 and the inimitable talents of Del, an underground legend whose rhyming vocabulary could stymy a National Spelling Bee whiz.

While not a significant commercial success, the record was an influential critical favourite that set the table for similarly boundary-busting pop experiments that dropped with increasing frequency over the following decade. Over time, the record's legend only grew.

In fact, perhaps too much so for the deft MC who helped give the project life, especially as he started pondering a followup.

"A lot of people, they're looking for (stuff) in the first record," said Del in a telephone interview from his Oakland, Calif., home. "Really, with the first one, I was just styling, but did it with futuristic vocabulary and imagery. But I was still just like, rapping, basically, and Dan kind of filled in the pockets with skits and stuff.

"But people took it to be way more. I mean, of course I was saying some stuff too — I've always got something to say — but people were taking it to the Nth level. And then other people were looking at it like, 'All he's doing is just freestyling using big words. It ain't that deep!'

"So for both of them, I said, OK. With this one, let me make it something that's a bit fatter. So if you're looking for something like that, it'll be there. And if you're looking to try to, like, discombobulate the situation — like deconstruct me or something — you ain't going to be able to do it."

The long, long-awaited result is the appropriately titled Deltron 3030: Event II, and it's actually — really! — out this week after more than a decade of false starts and delays that simultaneously frustrated and intrigued the group's cultish fan base.
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Harder than it looks

It was a lot of work, and the forthright Del doesn't necessarily claim to have enjoyed the process.

- Final quote. "It was a little too ambitious," he says with a laugh. "It was tough. And that's the reason why I'm saying I probably would think first before I created something of this magnitude again. I want to do some stuff that's adventurous."

Playboy Clooney's model behaviour bags him yet another young beauty

It looks like George Clooney is completely over Stacy Keibler, if his reported sleepover with Croatian model Monika Jakisic at his L.A. mansion last week is any indication. The pair "spent hours talking and have an incredible connection," a source tells Us Weekly.

That connection apparently began at a London nightclub back in May — two months before Clooney officially split with Keibler — where he and Jakisic "danced and held hands," according to the source. "He's been calling and texting her ever since."

Do not be alarmed, people of the U.K. — it's just Brad Pitt in his tank

Brad Pitt. ALL IMAGES GETTY

Brad Pitt's latest Second World War film, Fury, involves him spending a lot of time in a tank, so it's no surprise that residents of the U.K. town where they're filming have been warned about "loud and unexpected noises" and "intermittent controlled gunfire and explosions" during production, according to the Telegraph newspaper. "We wanted to warn people in advance so that they are not alarmed, but also we don't want people ringing the emergency services," a studio spokesperson says.

Don't Giver the role! Swift will ruin one of my favourites

ALEXANDRA M. CAVALLO
Metro World News in NYC

As most of you probably know by now, Taylor Swift has been cast in a small role in the upcoming film adaptation of Lois Lowry's iconic YA novel The Giver. I say iconic because this book, like, defined my fourth grade year.

So, when I heard that T. Swift — she of the never-ending odes to the bad, bad boys who shattered her achy breaky heart and the nonexistent acting chops (you guys saw Valentine's Day, right? Oh, no? Me neither) — was going to make an appearance in a Giver movie, I was a little affronted. And by a little affronted I mean I was all, "Say whaaat now?" and SMH dramatically at my laptop.

Especially because the rest of the cast is shaping up to be pretty alright — Jeff Bridges as the title carrier of all the world's pain and the inimitable Meryl Streep as the village matriarch responsible for assigning roles to the children when they come of age. Katie Holmes is apparently slated to play Jonas' mother, which I'm also not too psyched about but hey, she sort of lived the real life version of a woman brainwashed into believing a totally altered and whitewashed way of life was normal, so maybe she'll bring some real authenticity to the role. Swift is apparently going to play Rosemary, the girl who was supposed to become the next Giver before Jonas. And that's the only reason I haven't written a strongly worded letter to the casting director yet. I can take consolation in already knowing how she fares (spoiler alert: not well).

Michelle Rodriguez

Rodriguez finally and bluntly reveals sexuality

Michelle Rodriguez has finally decided to put an end to years of speculation about her sexuality.

"I don't talk about what I do with my vagina, and they're all intrigued," she recently told Entertainment Weekly. "I've never walked the (red) carpet with anyone, so they wonder, 'What does she do with her vagina?' Plus, I play a butchy girl all the time, so they assume I'm a lesbo. Eh, they're not too far off. I've gone both ways. I do as I please. I am too f—ing curious to sit here and not try when I can. Men are intriguing. So are chicks."

Au revoir to the runway

Another season of style has taken us to London, New York, Milan and finally, Paris. We conclude Spring/Summer 2014 fashion month with a look at France's most fabulous and forgettable offerings.

KENYA HUNT
Metro World News

Stella McCartney

Stella McCartney took a more relaxed, understated route for spring, working with longer silhouettes in single-tones. There was a very clear no-nonsense quality about the clothes, even with the more decorative skirts that had the peek-a-boo slits across the thighs. These were clothes for the woman who wants to look fashionable, but doesn't want to think about her outfit once she's put it on.

Chanel

Karl Lagerfeld's sophisticated tweed suits and younger urban dresses, all in saturated colours and painterly graphics, were the polar opposite of last season's work, which was darker and filled with Karl's rocker-edged trademarks. Watching the show, you got the sense that it was about having fun and enjoying the act of dressing up — how can you not in, say, a dress covered in multi-coloured tiers made to look like silk Pantone chips? It's display on an even grander scale than the pedestal treatment a sculpture may get in a gallery. And if you're going to show off, what better thing to wear than Chanel?

Saint Laurent Paris

Say what you want about Hedi Slimane, but you can't deny that he seems to know what women are in the mood to wear. Critics were on the fence about his last collection, which brought back grunge. Grunge at Saint Laurent? Isn't that blasphemy? The clothes are undeniably cool and sexy, but Isabel Marant already got there first. No matter, this updated take on that French rocker girl je ne sais quoi will be all over Zara and the like come March, if not sooner.

Chloé

Clare Waight Keller's clothes were refreshingly devoid of any bold graphics and prints, and yet it still had that feel-good quality that has characterized the shows this week. There wasn't a crystal or sequin in sight. Instead, she showed single-colour, easy-to-wear separates and dresses in a range of desert tones that were like a palette cleanser after the gilded, print parade we've seen this week. Best of all, it will give some much needed variety to the shop floors next spring.

Akris

This collection ran into trouble with the prints, which made the clothes look more like something you'd see in Banana Republic than on a Paris runway. The wrong print can cheapen a well-made piece. Other moments, though, such as an ivory v-neck sundress with sheer grids and a white coat dress with curved, sculptural tiers looked pretty, timeless and flawless — perfect for someone like, say, Princess Charlene of Monaco who sat front row.

Light up your living room

Tables and lights.
Part 2 of a series on living room decor will help you find the right accent tables and lighting for your space

Part 3

Next week: Artwork

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes
home@metronews.ca

In this four-part series, I'm serving up decor tips to get your living room looking fabulous in time for the holidays. In this issue, I tackle tables and lamps.

Size

• The lower the coffee table (14 to 18 inches high), the more modern it is. A higher coffee table (often referred to as a cocktail table, at 20 to 26 inches high) is a more traditional approach.
• The length of the coffee table should be two-thirds of the seating area on the sofa. Anything larger will be too awkward to move around.
• Two or three matching small tables can replace one large table and offer up flexibility when entertaining in a small space.
• The height of an end table should be within three inches lower or higher than the sofa arm.
• Try to find an end table that is almost as deep as the sofa — this will maximize space and offer more tabletop display surface.

Style

• Coffee and end tables don't have to match each other.
• If you have a casual household (young children, movie nights and slumber parties) then wood tables or upholstered ottomans (with trays on top) might be a better option for you.
• Glass-topped tables work better where formal entertaining is done.
• If you want to mix and match tables, wood and/or metal tones should be similar to other furnishings or accessories in the room.
• Tables that also offer storage are perfect for small spaces.

Cost

• The price depends on the level of quality.
• A beat-up storage trunk found on the side of the road could be the perfect solution for cottage-style decor, whereas a wooden English side table could cost you thousands of dollars.
• Rule of thumb: Your coffee table should cost about 30 per cent of the cost of your sofa.
• An inexpensive end table can look like a million bucks when topped with a fitted marble top.

Mixing and matching tables helps create an eclectic living room. cb2.com.

An alternative to a coffee table is an ottoman with storage. Jess Storage Ottoman, $1,250, modern-countryinteriors.com.

Make sure you take the height and style of your sofa into consideration when choosing an end table. Original Cottage end table, $129, sears.ca.

Discrete elbow-armed floor lamps are perfect for reading and fit with almost any style. Dainolite Chrome Floor Lamp $200, livinglighting.com.

Every room needs three types of lighting. Here's what you need in your living room:

Overhead: Try recessed lighting or pot lighting. These lights are used to brighten dark corners or walkways and illuminate paintings.

Ambient: This includes dimmed lights you leave on when you go out at night. A picture light, small candlestick lamps, plug-in night lights and battery-operated candles all help to create ambience in a room at night.

Task: Reading lamps are most popular. I like an elbow-angled floor lamp that can be moved when not in use.

Nailheads hit just the right note

Adler's acrylic obelisk filled with nails. JONATHAN ADLER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you lived in a comfortable home in 17th century France or 19th century England, your chairs might well have been embellished with nailhead trim. It was a clever, decorative way for craftsmen to secure materials to upholstered furniture.

Another traditional fastener, the rivet, was also commonplace in manufacturing and shipbuilding centuries ago.

Now, both nailheads and rivets are having a moment in contemporary decor. On some pieces, they reinforce traditional elegance. On others, they offer an urban, edgier esthetic.

"We're seeing nailhead trim — this 400-year-old detail — in lots of new applications, creating bold looks," says Seattle interior designer Timothy De Clue.

Lisa Ferguson, an interior designer in Toronto, trimmed a pair of armless coral chairs with a decorative, antique-brass nailhead design along the skirt. She says both brass and warm satin detailing evoke classic glamour.

"It almost always gives the perception of a more luxurious piece, while adding texture," Ferguson says.

But be mindful of inexpensive trims if you want a luxe look, she adds.

"Attention to detail and craftsmanship is what differentiates the good from the best. Pay special attention to the scale and spacing of the nail heads in relation to the piece of furniture, and always go for metal individual heads over rows of plastic if it is in your budget," she says.

Ballard Designs has a selection of headboards you can customize in different fabrics and finish with brass or silver nailheads.

Homegoods offers slipper chairs in fun colours like peony pink, lime green and rich purple, embellished with silvery trim.

Nailhead trim works well with textured materials; Jayson Home's Bretton shelf unit is covered in burlap and trimmed in brass nails.

Jayson Home also plays off the vintage industrial vibe in today's decor with rivet detailing on distressed-iron and steel side tables.

There are many communities, designs, and builders to choose from, so gather information to get a feel for what your dream home is. ISTOCK/THINKSTOCK

Maybe you have been dreaming up blueprints for years or simply stumbled upon a community where you would like to build your new home. Whatever the case, put on your savvy shopper hat and get informed.

There are many communities, designs, and builders to choose from, so read advertisements, browse builder websites, visit home shows and model show homes to get a feel for what your dream home is. Make a list of your need-to-have and want-to-have requirements.

Similar to resale homes, location and amenities are key when buying new. Investigate future development plans for roads, schools, shopping centres, green space and more prior to selecting your community.

When buying new, you are purchasing a package of services, not just the physical home structure, so you will need to carefully select a builder who is aligned with your goals.

Every builder will have a different philosophy on quality, speed to complete the home, flexibility with the design and the inclusion of certain finishings; some are standard like carpet floor, whereas others, like hardwood, cost extra and need to be included in your budget. Some builders require milestone payments throughout the construction process, in which case you will need your lender to design a mortgage structure that accommodates these. All of these items are negotiable.

Warranty and after-sale services are also very important so you aren't left high and dry with a lopsided door or faulty furnace. Before your home is completed, you will join the builder in a walk-through of the home to verify that the work has been done according to plan. If you are satisfied, you will sign a certificate of completion, noting any outstanding work and when it will be completed. This triggers the warranty coverage on your home.

Choose a builder with an excellent reputation and interview owners who have purchased from your builder. In Canada, most builders are members of the local Canadian Home Builder's Association (chba.ca). Ensure your builder is a true professional.

House or condo. Which is right for you?

LESLEY SCORGIE
For Metro

If you love the thought of hosting backyard barbecues and you don't mind cutting the lawn, freehold home ownership will probably work for you.

Freehold ownership is where you own both the physical land and the home on the land. This means you have full control over the property, subject to any local land-use bylaws, Crown rights or other restrictions communicated to you at the time of purchase. As long as you don't break any laws or violate permitting limitations you can do almost anything to the property, from remodelling, to planting a garden to building a fence.

Freehold ownership also means the owner is responsible for maintaining the yard, interior and exterior of the property. But if you don't keep up with predetermined neighbourhood permits, codes and standards, local residents can submit their complaints and the city can issue you warnings.

If, on the other hand, the sight of hedging sheers causes you goosebumps, you may want to consider a condominium.

With condominium ownership, you own the unit you live in and share in the ownership of common space within your building. Each month, unit owners pay fees to maintain and improve the building.

Condominiums are typically governed by a board of directors comprised of select unit owners, and the day-to-day activities like lawn maintenance and window cleaning are managed by a property manager who is employed by the board.

Because you don't own the building in a condo, you are limited in what can be changed. For example, if you want to install a hot tub on the balcony of your 21st-floor apartment, you would likely need to seek approval from the condominium board prior to hiring a crane. And condominiums have rules about things like noise and pets.

For many individuals that travel, condominium living is perfect. They simply lock the door to their unit and jet set to their destination knowing their property is secure.

A reputable realtor can walk you through the negotiation process and help you stick to your walk-away point. ISTOCK/THINKSTOCK

Negotiations are part of the process

In many cases, your initial offer to purchase is simply a starting point for negotiating. Often, the seller will counter-offer, which means they will ask for aspects of your initial offer to be amended, such as the price, deposit or conditions. Buyers and sellers continue to swap offers and counteroffers until they have reached an agreement or choose to walk away from the deal.

When making an offer, protect yourself and your finances by leaving emotions out of the equation and knowing your limits in terms of affordability and conditions. Clearly defining a "walk-away" point will also help guide the process.

When the negotiations begin, ask for what you want, but be realistic. Don't offer $100,000 for a property worth $1 million. Base your offer on facts by reviewing and presenting information on comparable properties from realtor.ca.

If it's a buyer's market, disclose that you are interested in other properties. If it's a seller's market, put a human face to the process and write a personal letter to the seller.

Throughout the process you will learn the seller's needs and can negotiate based on those.

A reputable realtor can walk you through the negotiation process and help you stick to your walk-away point.

The interest rate and terms of your mortgage are also up for negotiation. Follow these steps:

- Research current rates and terms by reviewing multiple websites of financial institutions. Also check out ratehub.ca for the best rates across Canada.
- Speak to a mortgage representative or manager, and ask for a better rate. Keep what you researched in mind during your discussion. Most credit grantors will try to work with you to earn or keep your business, especially if you are a good client.
- To strengthen your position, present a competitive offer that your lender could match.
- If the lender doesn't want to play ball, take your business elsewhere. LESLEY SCORGIE

Put down the boxed mac and cheese and no one gets hurt

"The whole wheat noodles and sweet potato up the nutritional score of this recipe, but it's as creamy and satisfying as a more traditional mac and cheese," writes Ceri Marsh in How to Feed a Family.

"I first made it when I needed to bring a dish to the Christmas potluck at (my daughter) Esme's daycare a couple of years ago. It's great any time you have to feed a big gang."

Ingredients

- 3 cups (750 ml) whole wheat macaroni
- 4 cup (60 ml) butter
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) all-purpose flour
- 2 cups (500 ml) milk
- 1 cup (250 ml) shredded cheddar cheese
- 5 cup (125 ml) grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 cup (250 ml) canned sweet potato purée
- Salt and pepper
- 1 cup (250 ml) frozen peas

1. Cook the pasta according to the package instructions.

2. In a large heavy-bottomed saucepan, melt the butter over medium-low heat. Sprinkle the flour over the butter, stir and allow to cook for a minute or two. Now slowly add the milk, stirring continually to stop the sauce from lumping up. If it's not thickening, nudge the heat up just a bit. Now add the cheeses and stir as they melt. Add the puréed sweet potato and stir well to combine. Taste before seasoning with salt and pepper.

3. In the last 2 minutes of the pasta's cooking time, add the frozen peas. (Who needs to dirty another pot?) Drain the pasta and peas in a sieve. Pour the cooked pasta and peas into the pot with sauce and give everything a good stir. Serve straight from the pot into bowls.

Throwing-it-together done right: Chicken Tray Bake

1. Preheat the oven to 400 F (200 C). Spray a large rimmed baking tray with cooking spray.

2. In a small bowl, whisk together the oil, lemon juice, oregano and salt and pepper to taste.

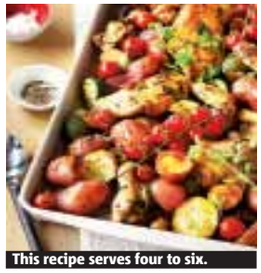
3. In a medium bowl, toss the chicken with half the dressing. You can allow the chicken to marinate in the refrigerator for more intense flavour (anywhere from 1 to 3 hours) but it's also great if you use it right away.

Ingredients

- 4 cup (60 ml) olive oil
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) chopped fresh oregano
- Salt and pepper
- 4 chicken wings
- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 2 boneless, skinless chicken thighs
- 3–4 lb (1.5–1.8 kg) red potatoes, halved
- 1 yellow zucchini, chopped
- 1 green zucchini, chopped
- 1 red onion, quartered
- 6 cloves garlic, peeled
- 32 cherry tomatoes

4. In a separate large bowl, coat the potatoes, zucchinis and onion with the remaining half of the dressing. Scatter the vegetables and garlic on the prepared baking tray. Arrange the chicken on the tray as well.

5. Bake in the oven for 15 minutes. Take out the baking tray and scatter the cherry tomatoes across the top of the vegetables. Return to oven and bake for another 15 to 20 minutes, until the chicken is cooked through and the vegetables are tender.



This recipe serves four to six.

6. Plate appropriate portions for family members (make mine big, please) from the tray and serve immediately.

App. Pears with Goat Cheese and Cranberries

1. Core pears and cut into about 12 slices. Toss them in the orange or lemon juice to keep from browning.

2. In a small bowl, mix together the cheese, pistachio pieces, cranberries and honey.

Ingredients

- 2 green Anjou pears, cored and sliced
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) orange or fresh lemon juice
- 5 cup (125 ml) softened goat cheese
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) pistachio pieces
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) dried cranberries
- 1 tsp (5 ml) honey

3. Spread the cheese mixture on the widest part of each pear slice. Arrange the pear slices on a serving tray and serve. If you're not serving immediately, cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate until needed.

Mattingly and Dodgers rewarded for patience

Playoff payoff.
Manager has yet to secure a deal beyond this season, however

Don Mattingly kept preaching patience.

Through the Los Angeles Dodgers' early-season slide into last place, the injuries to key players, and the reports that his job was in jeopardy, the third-year manager kept his cool.

He told everyone that the talent was there and the team's fortunes would change. Did they ever.

The Dodgers went on a 42-8 tear from late June to mid-August to win the NL West and earn their first playoff appearance in four years.

Mattingly is quick to credit his players and coaching staff, part of the even-keeled Hoosier's steady approach during a wildly up-and-down season. He's as low-key managing one of baseball's most storied franchises as he was playing for another during a superstar career with the New York Yankees.

Mattingly goes into Thursday's National League division-series opener in Atlanta not knowing if he will even be managing the Dodgers next season. The club's new owners, including Mark Walter, Stan Kasten and Magic Johnson, didn't guarantee his option for 2014 last off-season.

No matter — Mattingly has pressed on.

"Everything you go through is going to make you a better manager," he said. "I haven't really changed anything."

That kind of levelheadedness carried Mattingly through the first couple of months of the season when the Dodgers and their high-priced talent fell 9 1/2 games behind first-place Arizona while dropping a season-worst 12 games below .500.

Injuries played a big part, with Zack Greinke, Hanley Ramirez, Matt Kemp, A.J. Ellis and Mark Ellis out at times. The bullpen was in disarray early on before Kenley Jansen assumed the closer's role.

While Mattingly was taking the blame and the heat on websites that demanded his dismissal, he knew the Dodgers were too good to be bad for long. Not with Clayton Kershaw and Greinke leading the pitching staff, and a lineup featuring Adrian Gonzalez, Ramirez, rookie sensation Yasiel Puig and Carl Crawford.

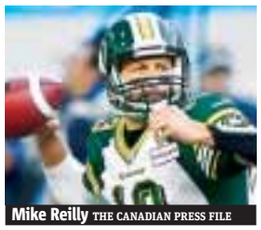
Low-rollers crashing playoff party

Hey big spenders! Baseball's playoffs are no longer your exclusive playground.

Pittsburgh, 26th among the 30 teams, with a $73.6 million payroll, rolled past Cincinnati on Tuesday night and into an NL division-series matchup against St. Louis. Oakland, 27th on the spending list at $71.1 million, according to Major League Baseball's latest figures, won the AL West and faces Detroit. And Tampa Bay, 28th at $65.6 million, played the wild-card game on Wednesday night against Cleveland, 21st at $88.6 million.

Sure, some of the big spenders found their way into October. The Los Angeles Dodgers raised their spending to $236.8 million during the season and are currently about $100,000 behind the Yankees. Boston is third at $174.1 million.

Reilly a 'full-go' in practice after concussion



Mike Reilly THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Edmonton Eskimos quarterback Mike Reilly went through a normal day of practice Wednesday and showed no signs of any residual concussion symptoms following the nasty head shot he took from Toronto Argonauts defensive lineman Cleyon Laing last Saturday.

Reilly was knocked out of the game and the team said on Sunday he had suffered a concussion. He missed practice Tuesday but was back taking most of the reps on Wednesday.

"Today was pretty much full-go for me," the six-foot-three, 215-pound first-year Eskimo said afterwards.

"As long as everything continues to go as expected I'm hopeful that I'll be cleared to play. There are only a few days but those are long days, there's still lots to do."

The 3-10 Eskimos play the 5-8 Montreal Alouettes Saturday in a game they have to win to retain any realistic playoff hopes.

Reilly said Wednesday he's felt no adverse symptoms since waking up on Sunday.

"The first night after the game even went pretty smoothly," he said. "Neck was a little sore that night but gone by the next morning. Since then there's been nothing to deal with."

The CFL fined Laing on Wednesday for the hit.

The date was Dec. 12, 2008, and the incident occurred in an Ontario Hockey Association senior AAA game in Brantford, Ont.

Don Sanderson, a defenceman with the Whitby Dunlops, became involved in a fight with Brantford Blast forward Corey Fulton.

Just before the fight began, Sanderson's helmet came off. During the bout, both players fell to the ice, with Sanderson striking his head.

He passed out briefly, regained consciousness and then went into a coma.

Sanderson, 21, and a York University student, died Jan. 2, 2009, three weeks later.

Fast forward to Tuesday night in Montreal.

George Parros, 33, of the Montreal Canadiens engaged in two meaningless fights with the Toronto Maple Leafs' Colton Orr. They were two of the five fights on the opening-night card of the NHL schedule.

In the fourth bout of the night, Parros stumbled over his opponent, smashing his face into the ice.

And just like Sanderson five years earlier, Parros passed out, regained consciousness and was taken off the ice on a stretcher.

But unlike Sanderson, Parros will live to tell his story. And unlike that ugly day in Brantford, we now have the opportunity to learn from our mistakes. And from Sanderson's death.

The fixes need to begin at the NHL level, with rules for needless fighting put into place.

It's easy. Fight and you will be ejected. It's simple, clean and everyone can understand it. It doesn't ban fighting; it increases the consequences.

Don't stop hitting. Keep skating at the highest speeds we have ever seen. Take Don Cherry's national platform away from him.

NHLers are larger, faster and stronger now than they have ever been. The game itself is as entertaining as we have ever seen.

In short, it's a wonderful game. Let's make certain it's a wonderful life.

Parros leaves hospital

Montreal Canadiens enforcer George Parros was released from hospital Wednesday after being treated for a head injury suffered in a fight with Maple Leafs tough guy Colton Orr during Tuesday's season-opening loss to Toronto.

Penn State scandal

U.S. court denies Sandusky's appeal

Former Penn State assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky should not get a new trial after being convicted of sexually abusing 10 boys, an appeals court ruled Wednesday.

Sandusky, 69, is serving a 30- to 60-year prison sentence at a state prison in Pennsylvania.

His case roiled the American sports world and led to the downfall of Hall of Fame coach Joe Paterno, who transformed Penn State into a college football power.

Wednesday's unanimous decision by a three-judge Superior Court panel came barely two weeks after they heard oral arguments by Sandusky's lawyer and a state prosecutor.

Defence lawyer Norris Gelman said he planned to ask the state Supreme Court to review the case.

Sandusky had argued his trial lawyers did not have sufficient time to prepare, a prosecutor made improper references to him not testifying on his own behalf and the judge mishandled two jury instructions.

NBA. Hard-knock rookie life over for Raptors big man Valanciunas

Jonas Valanciunas was knocked about by some of the biggest and best centres in the league in an inauspicious start to his NBA career.

Roy Hibbert, Brook Lopez, Al Jefferson, Kevin Garnett — no matter the night, it was going to be a long one for the Toronto Raptors rookie.

And as Valanciunas's debut went, so went the Raptors, it seems.

"Jonas took his whuppin' last year early," said Raptors coach Dwane Casey. "(Opponents) saw something good to eat with a rookie at centre."

But the growth of the young Lithuanian over the course of the season became one of Casey's biggest sources of pride in a campaign he otherwise didn't have a lot to be thrilled about.

"He had to learn. We knew that going in, that it was going to be ugly," Casey said. "But as the year went on you could see a young man growing, and it continued through this summer. It's not a finished product yet but he's getting there and I really like what we have."

The 21-year-old Valanciunas went on to shine for the Raptors in the Las Vegas Summer League, winning tournament MVP honours, and then helped Lithuania to its first Euroleague final in 10 years.

The seven-foot centre has been all business in his approach to his sophomore season. He put on weight and is noticeably broader across the chest, thicker in the arms.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
If a friend or colleague insists on what you think is a silly course of action, don't argue about it. Your best strategy is to agree with every word they say. Come tomorrow, they will have forgotten about it.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Most times you manage to get your way but today others are determined to deny you what you want. There will be a few cross words before the sun sets. Most will come from you.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You feel left out. Everyone but you seems to have something important to do. Why not turn it to your advantage? If others are too busy to watch you then you're free to do as you please.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Is a certain relationship worth the effort? That is the question you will be asking yourself today but you must not come to any hard conclusions just yet. Come tomorrow, it won't look as bad as it does now.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You may be eager to spend money, if only to cheer yourself up, but your extravagance could backfire on you later in the month when various bills have to be paid and you don't have the cash. Be prudent.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Try to view a negative situation in a positive way. Most of the "problems" you encounter are not really problems, just everyday events that you have allowed to balloon in size.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You won't be in the most trusting of moods today. You seem to believe that even your allies are plotting against you. It's all nonsense, of course, and by the end of the week you'll be the best of friends again.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Today's difficult cosmic picture may incline you to gloom and doom but don't let downbeat thoughts take over your mind. Make a list of all the things you have to be thankful for.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Don't take it to heart if certain people pour scorn on your ideas. It doesn't mean they don't think you are capable of reaching your goals. On the contrary, they know you are and that's what worries them.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Today's Sun-Uranus link may tempt you to scrap everything and start again from scratch but is that smart? Think of all the remarkable things you have done over the years. Don't waste all that good experience.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You would love to escape your everyday environment. So why don't you? Pack an overnight bag and head off into the wild blue yonder. Short-term escapism isn't bad.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
The Sun at odds with Uranus, planet of the unexpected, could bring a nasty financial suprise, but don't panic. Cash flow may be slow but it's not the end of the world. SALLY BROMPTON
